Michael P. McParlan is CEO and president of THE JAMAR COMPANY, a multi-disciplined specialty contractor and distributor serving the industrial and commercial marketplace with offices in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

McParlan joined Jamar in 2001 as vice president of construction and was named its president in 2002.

Under his leadership, with a focus on project execution, the company has continued in its commitment to provide the best to its people and customers.

McParlan began his career as a pipefitter apprentice in 1977, and worked his way through the ranks. He held successive field and management positions which ultimately reached the role of executive vice president of a Midwest mechanical contracting company before he joined the Jamar organization.

He is licensed as Master Plumber and Steamfitter in the state of Minnesota.

McParlan and his wife, Mary, have five children and are active in a variety of church, community and trade organizations.
